The subject was cityhood when approximately 600 Druid Hills residents and others packed Glenn Memorial sanctuary August 20. They were there to hear about the City of Briarcliff Initiative (COBI) and other incorporation plans drafted by key organizers of Druid Hills Civic Association (DHCA). COBI was one of three options discussed for denizens of Druid Hills. Others are the neighborhood’s maintaining status quo in unincorporated DeKalb and pursuing annexation into the City of Atlanta. A portion of Druid Hills currently sits within the City of Atlanta limits.

Urgency exists in the decision regarding the initiative, according to Justin Critz, president of the Druid Hills Civic Association, and Mike St. Louis, chair of the Committee to Explore Druid Hills Cityhood Options. Both speakers cited concerns of the declining service and economic conditions in DeKalb County and the negative consequences to Druid Hills of the proposed formation of The City of Lakeside. The City of Lakeside would have negative consequences for Druid Hills, according to Critz, St. Louis, and others who have studied The City of Lakeside’s plans to annex only selected portions of northern, unincorporated DeKalb County. Such annexation creates unnatural city boundaries that reflect the cityhood “game” of shifting tax liabilities to other parts of unincorporated DeKalb (including Druid Hills) by annexing a disproportionate ratio of commercial to residential property. To be fair to Lakeside, they are reacting to the unilateral actions of the Cities of Dunwoody and Brookhaven several years earlier taking the same actions: creating a new city that reduces its own taxes by encumbering within its city limits a disproportionate amount of commercial property. Moreover, the City of Brookhaven continues to be trying to annex even more commercial property that might more properly belong within the boundaries of the City of Lakeside, or even better, within the more natural, more ethnically-balanced, and more politically-balanced boundaries of the proposed City of Briarcliff.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for Druid Hills' annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

In making the City of Atlanta's case for DeKalb's annexation, the city's CIO Dutiya Farooqui emphasized Atlanta's longer wait than the counties he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.

The importance of the occasion was underscored by the attendance of a number of elected officials, including Interim DeKalb County CEO Lee May; Georgia Representatives Mary Margaret Oliver and Jason Carter; both of DeKalb, and Michelle Henson; DeKalb Commissioners Jeff Rader and Kathy Gannon; Commissioner Sharon Barnes-Sutton, BOC presiding officer; and Atlanta City Councilmen Alan Wren and Aaron Watson.

Lee May acknowledged difficulties in DeKalb government, explaining that conversations about DeKalb's future required longer than the 15 minutes he had been allotted to speak. He went on to share plans for increasing safety services in the county, tackling business permit issues, and creating a viable economic development plan.
To volunteer, please contact Mike Hellerstein at 212-1855 or email adminvp@druidhills.org.

Contact the DHCA office at 404-371-2631 or druidhills@druidhills.org.

Sign up for complimentary E-Alerts for news, events, neighborhood updates, and more, at alert@druidhills.org.

Get the Most Out of Your Advertising Dollars

The Druid Hills News is published in March, June, September, and December. It reaches thousands of people who live, work, and shop in Druid Hills. With thousands of copies of each issue distributed in the area, the publication’s advertising rates are a bargain for businesses that want to reach Druid Hills customers. For information on ad sizes and pricing, contact Mike Hellerstein at 212-1855 or email adminvp@druidhills.org.

HELP WANTED

Two Druid Hills Civic Association Committees need volunteers!

Community and Lifestyle

• Plan neighborhood events
• Assist with fundraising for neighborhood parks and common areas
• Create an increased sense of community in Druid Hills

To volunteer, please contact adminvp@druidhills.org.

Membership

• Welcome new DH residents
• Assist with administrative tasks
• Create new opportunities for residents to join DHCA

To volunteer, please contact Mike Hellerstein at 212-1855 or email adminvp@druidhills.org.

The Druid Hills News is published by volunteers.

NEWSLETTER EDITOR Mary Angela Whyte
MANAGING EDITOR Jennifer Richardson
TYPESETTING & DESIGN Julie Edwards

THE DRUID HILLS NEWS
Newsletter of the Druid Hills Civic Association
P.O. Box 363, Decatur, GA 30031-0363, VoiceMail 404-525-DHCA
Published by Volunteers

Your Letters Are Welcome

The deadlines for the fall issue of the Druid Hills News are:
Advertising — October 10
Copy — October 17
Publication will be in mid-November
Tim Singleton: 1936-2013

by Jennifer J. Richardson

Timothy Moore Singleton was a Druid Hills boy. He grew up here and attended Druid Hills High, where he was a star athlete, graduating in 1955. Singleton played football at UGA and was all-state. He was on the basketball team when they won two state championships and on the track team when they won three state championships. But Singleton wasn’t just a jock—he also graduated with high academic honors and went on to earn a doctorate in business.

Dr. Singleton attended Georgia Tech on a football scholarship and ran track at Tech. Later, he taught and coached at the Lovett School in Atlanta and at West Georgia College, while he pursued a master’s degree at Tech. While working on a doctorate at Georgia State University, Tim Singleton served as Dean of Men. After finishing his doctorate, Singleton taught business management and wrote textbooks on the subject in Houston, Texas. In 1989, he returned to Georgia to become Lee Anderson Professor of Management at North Georgia College in Dahlonega. Georgia. He retired as professor emeritus in 2001.

In addition to college teaching in the U.S., Singleton was also a visiting scholar at Yangzhou University in China, and a three-time Fulbright Scholar Exchange participant in Bulgaria. Singleton is recognized as being the founder of the famous July 4th Peachtree Road Race. While coaching at Georgia State, he traveled to Fort Benning for a race and decided to start a similar race in Atlanta. The first race, held in 1970, had only 100 participants. In 1971, Dr. Singleton ran in the Boston Marathon, where T-Shirts were given out to finishers, and so in 1971 the Peachtree Road Race also had T-shirts. Singleton, with the help of the Atlanta Track Club, served as the race’s director until 1975. Along the way, he ran in 73 marathons and 500 road races, and ran rim-to-rim in the Grand Canyon eleven times. He was awarded honored status by the Atlanta Sports Hall of Fame, the Druid Hills High School Athletic Hall of Fame, and the Peachtree Road Race Hall of Fame.

In addition to being a coach, teacher, and athlete, Singleton was also a mentor and friend to many. I had the good fortune to work for Dean Singleton when he was Dean of Men at GSU. We had two things in common: both of us graduated from Druid Hills, and both of us were pursuing graduate degrees. Alas, Singleton the athlete had an office assistant who had zero interest in team sports. (My one sports activity was playing flute in the Atlanta Falcons’ band for my sport, and since June of this year, I’ve swum more than 90 miles. Tim explained that both pursuits require discipline, practice, and devotion. He was right. I applied the lessons of swimming to “my sport” and since June of this year, I’ve swum more than 90 miles.

Singleton was happy for me—and encouraging—always the coach. As a musician, I thought jocks had little in common with musicians. But Singleton showed me I was wrong. As a musician, I thought jocks had little in common with musicians. But Singleton showed me I was wrong. I applied the lessons of swimming to “my sport” and since June of this year, I’ve swum more than 90 miles.

When Bob Ballou was asked what lessons were learned from negotiating with the power company twice over new construction in Druid Hills, he replied, “Pretty much what everyone already knows. Nothing new here. Persistence is good, some knowledge of the technical matters is helpful, keeping the lines of communication open is essential.”

“Were not getting exactly what we had fought for, but I think we’re getting the best deal we could get with Georgia Power,” Ballou said in an interview.

Contrary to what Georgia Power initially told DHCA, two years ago, the new substation will not power nearby Druid Hills Homes. The power will be serving, for the foreseeable future, Emory. “At the end of the day,” noted Bruce MacGregor, “it is not a bad thing to provide more reliable electrical power to the university and hospital complex.”
OLPA Announces New Executive Director
by Kirk Elifion, President

After an extensive search process that resulted in attracting 80 candidates, we are excited to announce our new Executive Director, Alex McCoy. Alex comes to OLPA with many years of experience in the environmental arena. He was most recently active in helping cities and businesses throughout the Southeast implement global clean technology solutions to advance the U.S. economy and green jobs. Previously he served Mayor Shirley Franklin as the City of Atlanta’s Director of Environmental Affairs. His most recent achievements include being recognized as an Official OSEGC Expert, member of “The Pool of Experts” and Atlanta Business Chronicle’s Environmental Innovation Finalist for 2012. He has served on many boards and committees in the Atlanta community and currently serves on the Keep Atlanta Beautiful Advisory Board and the Atlanta Better Buildings Challenge Steering Committee.

A Talk in the Park
by Jennifer J. Richardson

OLPA has inaugurated a new program, “Talk in the Park,” to be held quarterly. Our guided tour of the first four segments of the Olmsted Linear Park took place on June 25 and was led by Jennie Richardson and George Ickes. George “talked” about the 14-year renovation of the park, names of trees, plant material, and the challenges each season brings to such a large maintenance project. Jennie “talked” about the history of the park prior to its rehabilitation, the threat of a major expressway through and near the park, and some of the history of the families who chose to build homes along the park. The photo shows some of the participants on this first tour.

The next tour will be of the last two segments of the Linear Park: Dellwood and Deepdene. We’ll continue “talking” about interesting plant material and concentrate on the unique urban forest that comprises Deepdene. Along the way, we’ll discuss erosion issues, installation of new native plants, management of the forest, and elimination of non-native invasives. These topics will assist you in developing and caring for your own home landscape. George is the Park Director for OLPA and Jennie is a former board member and a Georgia Master Gardener, DeKalb County.

Lullwater Garden Club Launches
Lullwater Garden Revitalization Project

Improvements in the Lullwater Conservation Garden are continuous. Each year, the Lullwater Garden Club focuses on a new section of the Garden to address, while maintaining the parts reclaimed, receiving national acclaim for their efforts the last 10 years. In 2012, the Club acknowledged that some looming problems would require serious attention, a formal plan, and probably quite a bit of funding.

Accordingly, Spencer Tunnell of Tunnell & Tunnell Landscape Architects was hired to create a long-term Revitalization Plan. He and his firm were selected because of their extensive experience with conservation and restoration efforts. They completed the restoration of the Boxwood Garden at the Swan House, as well as a Master Plan—including three phases of implementation—for the Atlanta Botanical Garden from 1998-2002. In addition, he worked on the multi-phase implementation for the Olmsted Parks in our neighborhood.

The plan developed for the Lullwater Conservation Garden includes:

- A blueprint for the continued removal of dangerous invasives
- A formal plan for water management, including handling the runoff from surrounding streets, which continues to cause major problems
- A formal plan for erosion control of the stream—a serious issue with respect to the longevity of the trees in the Garden
- A design for nature trails to be expanded throughout the Garden
- A strategy for the enhancement of the Garden as a wildlife habitat
- A landscape plan for future native plantings
- A prototype design for signage and bench placement, once the other infrastructural work is completed

Implementation will span 5-7 years, and the Club is launching a multi-pronged fund raising effort. They will seek funding from the community, local corporations, private foundations, and a pledge drive. Your help is needed to keep improving this wonderful park right in our own backyard. All funds are tax deductible, as the Conservation Garden is a 501(C)3 non-profit. Interested parties can make checks payable to Lullwater Conservation Garden, P.O. Box 133155, Atlanta, GA 30333.

Cluster...continued from page 1

balanced, flexible, student-oriented curriculum which fully prepares students for post-secondary education program entry. Understanding the rich diversity in the Cluster Schools has been key in developing an instructional approach that enables parental choice of the “pathway” (e.g., Montessori, International Baccalaureate, STEAM-Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Mathematics, Advanced Placement-9-12) with transportation provided for the student.

The Cluster proposal seeks to direct maximum funds to the classroom where the greatest instructional impact and student acquisition of content goals can be observed and documented. Running with a lean “central administrative team” (Chief Administrative Officer, Cluster Financial Officer and Cluster-wide personnel) who report to the Governing Board, school principals and engaged staff are anticipated to have greater flexibility and local school control as they collaborate with School Leadership Teams to effect positive outcomes for students. The DHCC will hold itself accountable by demonstrating improved student achievement, across all schools, as posted on criterions and norm-referenced assessments, Measures of Academic Progress online assessments, authentic performances and classroom formative and summative tools.

The Cluster Organizing Committee, in collaboration with more than 100 individuals from the 7 schools, was deliberate in seeking the opinions, concerns and suggestions of parents, teachers, community members, and other stakeholders as they developed the multi-faceted Charter Petition Proposal, which may be reviewed at www.druidhillsclustercharter.org. In addition to the key findings of offering a multi-dimensional instructional design, providing continuous professional development, and affording opportunity for vertical and horizontal program review and planning, survey results indicated interest in expanding gifted education services.

The DHCC Governing Board and Organizing Committee members demonstrate diverse backgrounds and professional expertise, as well as an understanding of the magnitude of the undertaking. They welcome your review of the proposal and invite you to attend any of the informational meetings being held at the proposed charter schools. Meetings and happenings are noted on the Charter Cluster website (www.druidhillsclustercharter.org).

DHCC Governing Board Members
Theresa Johnson Bennett, proposed, member of the Avondale School Council.
Scott L. Bonder, lawyer, served as Fernbank PTA Vice President and School Council member.
Frederick L. Daniels, Jr., Banking executive, MARTA Board Chairman, served as treasurer of Fernbank Elementary Foundation.
Matthew S. Lewis, executive financial services provider, with experience as a member of the Druid Hills High School Council and as lead organizer and spokesperson for the DHCC.
Kathleen B. Mathers, educator, consulting business owner, former Executive Director of the Governor’s Office of Student Achievement.
David G. Roberts, financial advisor for public-sector clients.
Robert B. Thorpe, former principal of Druid Hills Middle School, retired.

SEE THE POSSIBILITIES
WHEN CREATIVITY
MEETS EXPERTISE

(404) 377-6006
www.moonbros.com

MOON BROS. INC. Architect/Craftsmen
Celebrating 40 years
Fall is for Planting
by Paula Refi

I’m convinced that the only remedy for this summer’s water woes is to whine less and concentrate instead on new garden possibilities. It’s not just a cliché; fall really and truly is the best time to plant most things, especially woody species. Cooler temperatures encourage the production of new roots and reduce the need for supplemental irrigation. This fall our soils are adequately hydrated, so digging should be easier than in previous droughty years. The only limitation used to be plant availability in autumn. But local nurseries do an excellent job now of anticipating a fall planting season, so you will be sure to find an abundance of shrubs and trees for purchase.

Fall was traditionally a time to bring indoors and broaden evergreens, and that continues to be the case. When deciduous plants drop their foliage, evergreens take center stage and keep the garden looking its best until spring. Conifers especially have grown in importance, as new sizes and varieties of attractive species expand the local plant palette. A generation ago, junipers were the main contributors. Now, Japanese cedar (Cryptomeria), false cypress (Chamaecyparis), arborvitae (Thuja), and Japanese plum (Ciphalothax) appear in sizes and shapes to beautify every landscape.

Broadleaf evergreens give Southern landscapes their regional character. The ubiquitous hollies, nandinas, mahonias, and abelias can now be found in arresting new forms. I’m particularly taken with Malonia ‘Soft Caress’, a recent departure from the familiar leatherleaf mahonia. ‘Soft Caress’ displays slender, spineless leaves on a much shorter shrub, while producing the familiar fragrant yellow blossoms in late winter. If you require an unimpeachable endorsement, it was named Plant of the Year by the Royal Horticultural Society. Better yet for Georgia gardeners, it was bred by local plantman Otis Johnson, so you know it will thrive here. Look for new abelias. I like ‘Kaleidoscope’, which is shorter than the old-time version, with yellow variegation on the foliage. Another shorter and more attractive version of a Southern favorite is Pittosporum ‘Kaleidoscope’, which is shorter than the old-timey version, with yellow variegation on the foliage. Another shorter and more attractive version of a Southern favorite is Pittosporum ‘Kaleidoscope’, which is shorter than the old-timey version, with yellow variegation on the foliage.

If you require an unimpeachable endorsement, it was named Plant of the Year by the Royal Horticultural Society. Better yet for Georgia gardeners, it was bred by local plantman Otis Johnson, so you know it will thrive here. Look for new abelias. I like ‘Kaleidoscope’, which is shorter than the old-time version, with yellow variegation on the foliage.

Most garden centers do not feature deciduous flowering shrubs and trees in fall simply because their naked stems make them less marketable. But do search for them, often at reduced prices, in a far corner of the nursery. You might just find a bargain-priced summer sweet (elder), beautybells (Callicarpa), butterfly bush (Buddleja), or hydrangea. Planting can sometimes right up into winter because the ground rarely freezes here. Space perennials, I could have continued with a discussion of fall bulbs and hardy annuals, but I bow to the dictates of my editor.

Aimée Boutique
By Amy Elfsry

Aimée Boutique presents all that is beautiful, from hand-made designer jewelry, artwork (paintings and sculpture), and home décor to women’s designer fashion! Boutique signifies chic, glamorous, and luxury, and hence Aimée Boutique is decorated in sumptuous tones of lavender and purple with gold and pale pink accents. The furniture and décor, high-backed, gold-print satin chairs with small, gold pillows and an inviting glass coffee table, beckon one to “sit back, relax, and bask in the world of beauty.”

Daisy Lucky Aukerman
by Elizabeth Warner

“Music is a gift for life! If you were a musical youngster growing up in Druid Hills, you most likely heard this advice from your vivacious piano teacher, Mr. Daisy Lucky Aukerman.

Chilly attire in tones of gold and taupe, Ms. Daisy shared stories of the teachers, pupils and family that have formed the song of her life.

Much of that melody has been played in Georgia, and especially here in Druid Hills.

“I was born in Harlem, Georgia, and I loved it! That small town closeness and warmth was important when Daisy's mother was suddenly widowed with four small children. Even though times were difficult, she made certain Daisy Shepherd and her siblings took piano lessons from Mrs. Jule Hatcher.

That began a life long love of music. “Once I heard how a tune could be played, I never fuzzed about practice. I put practice at the top of my list.” Local, regional, and then state contests were swept by the talented siblings. Daisy was in demand as a church accompanist and performer.

“I remember my earlier performances—when I was 15, I played the ‘Moonlight Sonata’ on WSB radio. I was nervous, but you are always a little nervous when performing.

Her mastery of Debussy, Beethoven, and other classics caught the ear of university faculty. A scholarship to University of Georgia? Brenau College? LaGrange College? Daisy chose LaGrange, deciding to study with Mrs. Rosa Muller of the Leipzig Conservatory.

I earned extra by accompanying singers who would perform before one act playings. Busy with studies, she was elected class president.

After college, the Druid Hills stamia of Daisy's life began. Charmed by a picture of Daisy in her May Court dress, Milton Luckey, a young attorney, wooed and married her.

They moved to Oakdale Road and welcomed a son and daughter into their home. Daisy began teaching music throughout Dekalb County schools.

The song came together. The school program flourished, and private lessons were offered. “I had so many talented pupils that I can’t name them all! Penny Naylor, Patricia Vandervelde, Julie Smith, Danielle Palms, Patricia Myers, Ted McMullan…” Miss Daisy glowed, displaying newspaper clippings, recital programs and photographs of her students.

I didn’t just sit them down and say ‘play,’ but coached them along the way. I could tell fairly soon if students had natural talent by the way their fingers would curve the keys. Even if they didn’t have a natural gift—if they just hit the keys—I would encourage them to do their best.

Daisy did more than encourage her Druid Hills students in music; she focused on developing self-confidence to carry them though adulthood.

“We had recitals at the Atlanta Women’s Club, a very lovely place. The students knew to dress up, no blue jeans there. I knew they would be proud of themselves. Music is such a great self-esteem booster.”

After her husband passed unexpectedly, Daisy moved to midtown. That began her 34-year position as organist at the First United Methodist Church: “I played two Sunday services, weddings, funerals, and Wednesday evening services.

“When I married Mr. Aukerman, I knew we wanted to live in Druid Hills. It’s unique, a historic place with people who love the arts and education.” Back on Oakdale Road, Daisy once again opened her studio to local pupils.

Her students learned to play duets for two pianos, giving holiday recitals in her home. “Lessons started in fall, and we had a holiday recital. I always decorated the living room in all white. It made it so special.”

All the pride and affection Daisy had for her students was returned. In 2011 Ted McMullan coordinated a “Daisy Lucky Aukerman National Appreciation Event”, with former students arriving from all parts of the country to share their appreciation. Ted also announced the Daisy Shepherd Luckey Excellence in Music Scholarship in honor of her 50 years of teaching music.

Her love of music has many variations: accomplishment for The Atlanta Boys Choir at their New York debut, Georgia Music Teacher 50-Year Service Award, Atlanta Music Club, Pro-Mozart Society, American Guild of Organists, Steinway Society, Mut Plk Epulion, National Guild of Piano Teachers, three- time-president of the Atlanta Women’s Club, and recipient of the Outstanding Alumnun Award at LaGrange College.

Surrounded by pupils of family, young students, and concerts. Daisy sat with the grace of a model at her signed Steinway and played a Rachmaninoff Prelude. For a woman who began life in a small town surrounded by warmth, she has built a life gracefully, note by note, building a song of affection and music in this community.

Evan Elam, son of Ticia and Jeff Elam, recently presented his Eagle Scout service project to the community. Evan’s project involved researching appropriate materials and designs to construct bird houses, and which houses are the best for which birds. Evan built or supervised the building of a number of bird houses, including two bat houses. The bird houses were then placed in the Lullwater Conservation Garden at appropriate heights and spots that would attract birds.

Evan gave a presentation on his project to a gathering of fellow Scouts, Scout Leaders, family, neighbors and Lullwater Garden Club members on June 1. As of the date of the presentation, one of Evan’s newly constructed houses was already inhabited by a family of birds!

Congratulations to Evan Elam on this gift to the community and on attaining his Eagle Scout award.
Squirrels 3: Humans 0
by Jennifer J. Richardson,
Master Gardener, DeKalb County

The summer of 2013 was the worst year for my garden in the past 40 years. For decades, I’ve been preaching that overwatering causes more plant material death than under-watering. Unfortunately, Mother Nature didn’t listen this year, and on most days, a deluge of rain was her gift from the sky. After years of drought, this year was very—very wet.

In addition to a soggy garden, another serious problem this year was lack of sunlight. Most plants (especially garden vegetables) need six or more hours of sunlight per day. Usually, in Atlanta summers, bright sun is no problem. But this year, the skies reminded me and my Irish guests more of Ireland than the sunny South. I faced grey skies, thick clouds, and somewhere ‘way up above was a sun not making it to my yard. The sad result was powdery mildews, wilt, and failure to thrive.

Any gardener knows each year is different. Some years, eggplant thrive while lettuce or spinach never germinates. Other years, okra flops on its side in the third or fourth week of the summer, while yellow and zucchini squash outwit bowers to form tender yellow and green delights. But always, always, there are tomatoes. True, some years are better than others. In 2012, my tomato yield was so large I could gift vine ripened toms to my friends and neighbors and still have enough to eat and to dehydrate for winter use. This year, there were no tomatoes. No squash, no eggplant, no lettuce, no spinach, no corn, no peppers, no okra.

Despite row after row of pitiful tomato plants, I’ve yet to see any fruit. What went wrong? With the hope that the third watermelon would be larger and green and small and disappeared early in the season with the usual suspects: backyard squirrels. So, 2013 was a summer of no tomatoes. Score one for Mother Nature and the squirrels.

One thing that did thrive was my pomegranate bush. I stopped counting at 70 colorful orange blooms that would eventually make into ripe fruit. I will transplant them from flats to paper back yard in a cage. Maybe Mother Nature will be kinder.

The last watermelon reached the size of a soccer ball. It was a deep shiny green, perfectly round, and had a watermelon because it got too big for them to carry away. The summer of 2013-14 school term under way, it is time to consider your own home for the Tour, Suzanne White has joined the committee as House Management chair Richard Burgess’s home was a highlight of the 2013 Tour. The student body of DHMS is driven to make a positive impact on the community with a new, year-long community service project. The service program promotes knowledge and understanding of the greater community beyond the school walls, leadership, and positive role model development. Members of the Druid Hills community are welcome to assist with students monthly projects, including the September drive for Genesis Shelter, the October canned food drive, and the November-December Toys for Tots collection. Donations for the Genesis Shelter may be dropped off in the front lobby of the school from 8:15 – 8:40 a.m. any day in September, with items such as disposable diapers, baby wipes, GOOD START powdered baby formula, set of baby wash, powder and lotion, or hooded baby bath towel being sought. Likewise, donations for upcoming drives may be delivered to the school front lobby during the appropriate month and same time.

Druid Hills Home & Garden Tour

The Druid Hills Home & Garden Tour is off to a good start with several committee chairs in place. Home Selection chair Janet McNicholl’s home was featured on the 2012 Tour and House Management chair Richard Burgess’s home was a highlight of the 2013 Tour. Suzanne White has joined the committee as Revenue Chair. Ryan Graham is Tour Liaison. The committee continues to seek volunteers to manage Operations and Logistics. Please join the meetings on the first Wednesday of every month at St. John’s Lutheran Church at noon. For more information or to invite Home Selection to consider your own home for the Tour, please write to tour@druidhills.org.

School News

The 2014 Druid Hills Home & Garden Tour is off to a good start with several committee chairs in place. Home Selection chair Janet McNicholl’s home was featured on the 2012 Tour and House Management chair Richard Burgess’s home was a highlight of the 2013 Tour. Suzanne White has joined the committee as Revenue Chair. Ryan Graham is Tour Liaison. The committee continues to seek volunteers to manage Operations and Logistics. Please join the meetings on the first Wednesday of every month at St. John’s Lutheran Church at noon. For more information or to invite Home Selection to consider your own home for the Tour, please write to tour@druidhills.org.
A Green Celebration for Atlanta’s Famous Park
2013 “Dream in Green” gala celebrates completion of the Olmsted Linear Park
Sunday, February 17, Fernbank Museum, 7 pm - 10 pm
Reserve tickets at www.atlantaolmstedpark.org

ATLANTA - (Dund Hills) When Charles Beveridge visited Druid Hills to view the restoration of the neighborhood’s linear park, designed by famed landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted, he judged the effort to be “the most thorough and comprehensive replanting of any Olmsted project undertaken in the last 25 years.” Beveridge should know. He is the foremost Olmsted expert, having edited the nine volumes of Olmsted’s papers and consulted on Olmsted restoration projects throughout the nation.

Beveridge’s comment was welcome news to the Olmsted Linear Park Alliance (OLPA), the group that has spearheaded the rehabilitation and preservation of the park. This winter, the implementation phase of the decade-plus project will be complete, and OLPA is throwing a party to celebrate.

In what promises to be the neighborhood party of 2013, the “Dream in Green” gala will be held on Sunday, February 17, 7-10 p.m., at the Fernbank Museum of Natural History. Chairwoman Beth Grahoef promises an evening to remember, with chances to connect with neighbors and park lovers, listen to live jazz, and sample delectable hors d’oeuvres and signature cocktails. Live and silent auctions will feature beach and mountain getaways, fine art, rare wines, roundtrip airline tickets and more. Reserve tickets now by visiting atlantaolmstedpark.org or call 404-377-5361 for more information.

Druid Hills Civic Association
Not yet a member of DHCA? Use the form below and join today! Join online at http://druidhills.org/join-the-dhca/

Druid Hills Civic Association Membership Membership Form

Please [ ] enroll me. Please [ ] renew my membership in the DHCA.

Name ____________________________
Address __________________________
City ___________________________ State ______ Zip __________ Phone ________________________

Email address ______________________________________________________________________________

Annual Dues
____ Basic Member . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . $25.00 or higher
____ Sustaining Member . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . $50.00 or higher
____ Druid Hills Member . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . $100.00 or higher
____ Second Century Member . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . $250.00 or higher

Amount Contributed $_________

Please make checks payable to: “Druid Hills Civic Association.”
Please mail to: Druid Hills Civic Association, PO. Box 363, Decatur, GA 30031.

All households that join or renew at $50 or higher will have their names printed in an honor roll in The Druid Hills News.

HOW ABOUT PARTICIPATING IN THE DRUID HILLS CIVIC ASSOCIATION?
Please indicate your area of interest.

____ Communications _______ Membership _______ Tree Spirit of Rutledge Park
____ Historic Preservation _______ Traffic _______ Tourism at Rutledge Park
____ Tour of Homes & Gardens _______ Land use/Zoning _______ Newsletter
____ Peavine Watershed _______ Tree Spirit of Rutledge Park

For more information about Rutledge Park, please visit the website at www.rutledgepark.org.

Upcoming Speaker at Trees Atlanta
Greg Paige, Curator at Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories Artherrram, presents: ‘The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly: Tough Love for Trees in the Urban Environment’
Thursday, October 3rd from 5:30-7 p.m. in the Emory Presbyterian Church, 1886 N. Decatur Road, adjacent to Druid Hills High School.

For more information, call 404-377-5361 or reschedule at www.treesatlanta.org/calendar.

Upcoming Speaker at Trees Atlanta
Greg Paige, Curator at Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories Artherrram, presents: ‘The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly: Tough Love for Trees in the Urban Environment’
Thursday, October 3rd from 5:30-7 p.m.

For more information, call 404-377-5361 or reschedule at www.treesatlanta.org/calendar.

GREAT GIFT!

“ATLANTA IS OURS”
(Th e Plot to Capture Sherman) by Richard H. Sams
Druid Hills, Emory, and North Decatur history comes alive with this historical novel by Richard H. Sams, lifelong resident of our community.

Autographed copies now available directly from the author in time for Christmas. $24.95 Order at rhsams@comcast.net

GEORGIAN REALTY

Owned & Operated in Historic Druid Hills

Please call or email for a free, no obligation property valuation.

Ryan Graham
404-550-7726
Ryan@GeorgianRealty.com
www.GeorgianRealty.com
1069 CLIFTON ROAD, DRUID HILLS
This 1930s gracious brick two-story features handsome architectural details including high ceilings and heavy moldings. The front entrance leads to a music room or study. Formal living room with elegant fireplace, and side sunroom where you can relax and enjoy views of the beautifully landscaped garden. The generously-sized dining room is ready for large gatherings and leads to the breakfast room with original built-in pantry and entrance to the deck and patio that has a fire pit below. A well-appointed kitchen, with stained cabinets and granite countertops, offers a breakfast bar and opens to the family room. A central staircase with beautiful banister leads to the upstairs where you will find a master bedroom with walk-in closets and newly renovated marble bathroom that includes a double vanity, soaking tub, and separate shower. Upstairs you will find two more bedrooms plus a sleeping porch and office. As a bonus, this property also includes a detached brick two-car garage house. NEW PRICE! $635,000

2087 DESMOND DRIVE, DRUID HILLS
This elegant home with soaring ceilings and classic modern architectural features is better than new. The inviting floor plan is perfect for entertaining with a spacious central great room that has French doors leading to a professionally landscaped courtyard featuring a pond and cascading waterfall. Gourmet kitchen, with all of the upgrades, features a large center island and breakfast or keeping room with built-in entertainment cabinet. Spacious bedrooms on the main can be used as two master suites and both include large walk in closets. Spa-like bathroom features two separate vanity areas. Large windows provide lots of light and views to the koi gardens. Attached two-car garage is reached by the rear- access that brings you into the pines, gated backyard. The terrace level offers two more generously-sized bedrooms, one that is currently used as a media room and even an exercise room. $425,000

1987 MASON MILL ROAD, EMORY PARC
Located in the sought after Emory Park subdivision, this custom-built, meticulously maintained John Willis home offers views of the central park. The front porch leads to a quiet entry hall on the main level, which features an open floor plan. French doors flanked with windows open to a formal living room that shares a double-sided fireplace with the spacious dining room. The well-appointed kitchen offers ample cabinets, an island, and a breakfast bar that is adjacent to the family room. From the family room you can enjoy views of the lovely low-maintenance backyard, or you can step through the French doors onto the deck and immerse yourself in the outdoors. The master suite is located upstairs with a sitting area and fabulous walk-in closet. Two additional bedrooms upstairs share a jack and jill bathroom. A drive under, two-car garage leads to a mudroom and basement that has a full bathroom plus room to expand. Emory Parc is a wonderful community located in walking distance to the tennis courts, public library, and the new PATH! $575,000

180 PINEROCK AVENUE, DECATUR
This 1920s brick cottage that is located on a quiet, tree-lined street in the desirable Glenmore Estates neighborhood, this beautiful bungalow greets you at this quality brick home. The large living room has a fireplace and French doors that lead to a screened porch. The spacious dining room opens to a charming kitchen featuring original pine cabinetry and a breakfast nook with butler's pantry. The laundry room off of the kitchen offers plenty of storage and pantry space. The master suite with private bath is located on the main level with two additional bedrooms and a full bath. Upstairs you will find an additional bedroom and bathroom with a playroom or den plus ample storage closets. The full basement has been “finished” waterneted and includes a workshop. The generously sized backyard is a gardener’s paradise with vegetables beds that are ready for you to grow your favorites. $575,000

534 PONCE DE LEON PLACE, DECATUR
This circa 1900 Craftsman bungalow has been completely renovated and expanded to include all of the modern conveniences and luxuries of a new construction home without compromising the historic charm. Located two blocks from historic downtown Decatur, this two-bedroom, two-bathroom home is sure to meet all of your comfort needs. The open floor plan features a separate light-filled living room, large sunroom, and custom kitchen with stainless steel appliances and soapstone countertops. A spacious owner’s suite with charming original fireplace is complete with a private bath. backyard features a large deck with pergola and is the perfect place to read a book or entertain friends. $425,000

THE CLIFTON 209, DRUID HILLS
Gorgeous architecture, impeccable grounds, and top-notch concierge services await you in this luxury condominium. As the former “model” this unit features all of the upgrades and has a premier location in the complex above the esplanade pool. Stately judges paneling greets you in the foyer that leads to the living room with fireplace. Kitchen has Bosch appliances, granite counter tops, and an open view of the living room. A hallway with custom his and hers closets leads to the bedroom that has a private entrance to the balcony. The master bathroom offers a separate shower, jetted tub, and granite counter tops. This impeccable building builds the finest finishes and amenities you will ever need. all located directly across from the beautiful Emory campus. As an extra plus, a storage unit valued at $5,000 is included. $259,000

NATALIE GREGORY, Your Home Marketing Specialist
404 550 5113 direct • 404 564 5560 office
Natalie@NatalieGregorySOLD.com • NatalieGregorySOLD.com
315 West Ponce de Leon, Suite 100, Decatur, Georgia 30030

#1 Real Estate Sales Team for Dekalb County 2009-2012

THE DRUID HILLS NEWS
Fall 2013